Laura, I think our comments boil down to two. One is a comment from Elizabeth included below. The second one is that we do agree with Larry Kimmel that we consider the creation of functional channels as part of land configuration critical to remedy performance for protecting surface quality. We seem to be already seeing improvements in water quality now that the channels are installed.

I am not so sure about this answer!

12. CDPHE Section 5.2.6, page 21: The Water Supply Classification is still in place Great Western Reservoir, future use as a drinking water supply is not precluded.

Future use of Great Western Reservoir as a drinking water supply is precluded by the terms of the Option B grant from DOE to the City of Broomfield.

I would agree with Larry.
